- Russian Signal Corps troops of company strength are stationed in the Bansagi Street barracks. Working parties of these troops are often seen along the Nyiregyhaza-Csap railway line checking the telegraph system.
- 2. The direct telephone and telegraph connections between Budapest and Moscow run along the Budapest-Szolnok-Debreczen-Nyiregyhaza-Csap railway line. This is a six cable (Fach) system which was extended to Rudapest in the spring of 1951, via the city of Pestszentlörinc. The system is constantly controlled technically and it is also guarded by patrols, with dogs.
- 3. A Hungarian infantry battalion is located in the Damjanich barracks on the former Kallai Street. These barracks suffered very little damage during the war and were completely renovated in 1950.
- 4. In the sping of 1950 new tank barracks were built on Tokaji Street. A Hungarian tank unit (assault artillery?) has since been quartered here.
- 5. A Hungarian motor artillery unit is quartered in the barracks on Arok Street. After the war, until 1949, this was the agricultural school of Szaboles County !
- 6. The AVE command and its duty formation are stationed at the former bank building, on the corner of Orszagzászló square and Iskola Street.
- 7. The police headquarters and a battalion of its duty formation are quartered on Deseffy Square, in the former gendarmery barracks.
- 8. The barracks on Rakoczi Street serve no military purpose. They contain depots for the neighboring collective farms and a people's kitchen.
- 9. A Hungarian high command staff is located in the district command building Deseffy Square. A sentry post is kept at the entrance day and night. This may be the headquarters of the 4th Rifle Division.
